Bousille Dispers Our Inferiority Complex

• The CBC is to be congratulated on the production of such excellent programs as "Bousille and the Just" on Festival recently. Not only was the play in itself worthy by any standards, but it had the distinction of being completely Canadian. It is programs like this which help Canadians out of their "intellectual inferiority" complex.

I am a teenager and I think it should be known that many of our age group appreciate something more than Bachelor Father and Bonanza.—Miss E.C., Regina.

• When we have a chance to watch TV, we don't want plays like the one shown Monday Feb. 26th on Festival ("Bousille and the Just"), which was disgusting and good for no one's morals. There wasn't even a good story to it.—Mrs. A.C., Semans, Sask.

• We have just this minute finished watching Festival's production of "Bousille and the Just." Congratulations are in order for a thoroughly enjoyable play. We found it amusing, frank and absorbing, and we look forward to more productions of the same calibre in the future.—W.A.E., Saskatoon.

• "Bousille and the Just" has prompted me to make a few remarks.

We would like you to know that this household enjoyed the play very much. It was well constructed, well acted, quite believable and highly entertaining. Artistically, the play could be improved upon very little.

Also I would like to compliment the CBC on having the courage to telecast a theme which we feel will cause some criticism. You may however come through relatively unscathed since everyone with the possible exception of our few Bousilles must admit at least tacitly that most of us are dissemblers of one sort or another. Surely though you will receive a few righteous letters from viewers who do not see themselves in this way.

While the subject of this play may not stir much controversy in this day there are ideas that can. Doubtless the CBC has disposed of many of these through lack of daring in the face of imminent public outcry. I for one am merely writing to offer a bit of encouragement to you in whatever efforts you may be making to give us humans a clearer view of ourselves, regardless of where such a course may lead. . . .

We think you are doing an excellent job on both radio and television. You appear to be always striving for quality programming and we as Canadians should consider ourselves fortunate in having such a conscientious broadcasting system. — J.M., Spring Coulee, Alta.

Judy Thrills Again

• I wish to say "thank you" for the Judy Garland Show. This is a wonderful girl and it was a great thrill to see her once again.

I'd like to comment on a few other programs, namely Danny Thomas and Don Messer—we enjoy them immensely. Also thank you so much for all your sports coverage. We are great basketball and hockey fans. Saturday is a much looked-forward-to day. — Mrs. N.S., Robinhood, Sask.

Adult Programs

At Adult Viewing Times

• I sincerely hope that the home influence and example set by their parents have more impact on teenagers than the so-called demoralizing TV plays that Mrs. G.M. of Firdale, Man., complained of in the CBC Times, March 3-9. She must realize that we cannot always shield our children from the unpleasant aspects of life, and if they are allowed to sit up and watch TV in the evening, they must expect to see more adult programs. Personally, I thought "The Queen and the Rebels" was first-class drama, as was "Bousille and the Just." Thank you for Festival. I'm sure it's not corrupting our teenagers' morals. — Mrs. H.M., Didsbury, Alta.

Lucky Students!

• Just had to let you know how much we enjoyed Shaw's "Arms and the Man" on CBWT March 6. What a wonderful way for high school students to study a play.

The 15-minute introductory by John Hirsch was most enlightening and paved the way for two hours of superb performance. Let's have more!—Mrs. G.H.S., Headingley, Man.

• Lucky Grade Twelve students to see such a delightful performance of Shaw's "Arms and the Man"! It had the artistic direction we have come to expect from producer A. P. H. Scott. The short talk by John Hirsch of the Manitoba Theatre Centre added an extra fillip.

Please repeat this excellent play soon and in a favorable evening spot so that folks who missed the morning performance may have a chance to enjoy it.—Mrs. B.W., Winnipeg.

"IN THE HUNGRY THIRTIES, there were obvious reasons for being a hobo. But why today?" Interviewer Per Holting spent a week in Winnipeg's hobo jungle trying to find the answer to this question. This Wednesday, Explorations presents a filmed account of what he discovered, as the first of three programs from Winnipeg entitled "Hidden Worlds."

During his experience, Holting became acquainted with a wide variety of down-and-outers—"Some, I recall as very bright, some pretty dull, a few struck me as genuine victims of misfortune, others as chronic malingerers." Some of these men are introduced to the television audience, as they tell their stories.

For further details on the series, see the feature on page 4. Ken Black and Frank Rasler are the producers.

TWO YEARS IN THE MAKING, a 13-week film series reviving a significant decade in Canada's history, 1936 to 1946, will begin on the CBC-TV network April 3.

Canada At War deals with this nation's war effort at home and on the front, covering the wartime period chronologically. More than 16 million feet of pre-war and wartime newsreel film were edited to create the series by the National Film Board.

Donald Brittain, who wrote the scripts, comments, "It made me even more horrified at the prospect of another war. Some film was so horrible we couldn't use it. But, without making people physically ill, we do show how horrible the Second World War was. We don't gloss it over. I didn't write an antiseptic war."

A PIONEER in the use of the recorder (wind instrument) on this continent in the musical education of school children is heard alternate Thursdays on the Saskatchewan Schools Broadcast, Let's Listen to Music. He is Saskatchewan's Supervisor of Music Rj Staples (he prefers that his second initial be printed in the lower case.)

A graduate of Moose Jaw Normal School in 1924, he taught school at Fenwood, Grenfell and Southey, Sask., before attending the University of Manitoba, from which he was graduated in 1931, and the Manitoba Normal School. He has taken post-graduate training at the University of Saskatchewan and two U.S. universities, and among the noted musicians he has studied under, Robert Shaw, noted choral director, is perhaps the most widely recognized.

Other teaching positions he has held were at Eriksdale, Man., Continuation School, Central Collegiate in Regina, Florida State University, and as a visiting lecturer at the University of Saskatchewan. His specialty has led to publication of many related textbooks, and he also has written two songs, "Men of the Royal Mounted" and "Hail Fair Canada."

Fred Davis and Tommy Ambrose, two of CBC-TV's best-known stars, were to be in Winnipeg March 23 to appear at the Symphony Fiesta, in support of the Winnipeg Symphony. While in the West, they will be guests on the Winnipeg production, Music Break, on a videotaped program to be seen Wednesday afternoon, April 4. Fred is moderator of Front Page Challenge, Tuesdays, while Tommy hosts the variety show bearing his name, Friday evenings.

A Look at the TWILIGHT WORLD

AN EXPLORATION into the "twilight" world occupied by three sections of humanity which exist in our midst but are generally unobserved by the rest of society begins Wednesday, March 28, on CBC television's Explorations. Entitled Hidden Worlds, the three-part series investigates The Hobo Jungle, The Fringe-Dwellers and The Old People of a Community.

The first part of the series visits the banks of the Red River where each summer groups of transients—hobos who lead gypsy-like lives wandering across the country—spend a few days or a few weeks in Winnipeg's "hobo jungle" before moving on to another temporary resting place in another city or town.

On April 4, The Fringe-Dwellers examines the lives of an Indian and Metis squatters' settlement on the Trans-Canada Highway, 70 miles west of Winnipeg near the town of MacGregor, one of some 35 such settlements in Manitoba. For years, this small community lived in shacks by the highway, isolated from society and existing in poverty. Last fall, however, the provincial government initiated a rehabilitation program for these people, beginning with a rehousing scheme which was recently completed. During the program, interviewer Thecla Bradshaw visits the "fringe-dwellers" in their old homes and reveals how they had lived for as long as local residents could remember.

The final part of the series, to be seen April 11, tells the story of an old man in the city, bringing into focus the outlook and philosophy of the elderly people in the community whose lives most of us only glimpse at from time to time.

Material for the first two programs in Hidden Worlds was originally seen on the Winnipeg public affairs program, Eye to Eye, and has been adapted for use in this network series. The programs are produced by Ken Black and Frank Rasler. Peter Kelly directs the filming of the third program of the series.

Juliette's Romeos Like Working Together

FOUR YEARS AGO when the Romeos first sang together as guests on a Juliette show on CBC television, they had three songs in their repertoire. Now, with a weekly spot in The Juliette Show (Saturdays immediately after the hockey game) and bookings for summer appearances in Ontario night clubs, the male quartet can choose from 250 songs, ranging from folk songs to semi-classics.

Within the next month another phase in the group's career begins with the release of its first long-play record album. The album consists of 12 standard ballads, sung in the straightforward style which the Romeos have adopted since they were organized in 1958.

Unlike other groups, the Romeos have not been overnight successes. They readily admit that success has been a slow process, mainly because they've always done a bit of everything; they haven't stuck to any one phase as most vocal groups do these days.

An unusual aspect of the group—baritones Vern Kennedy and Rick Stainsby, bass John Garden and tenor Alex Ticknovich—is that it is compatible, despite the fact that each singer comes from a different part of Canada and that they all have different outside interests.

"We're actually a five-way family affair," they all chime. "We all give our opinions and hash the ideas around. When we say five-way family, we consider Gino Silvi (the quartet's arranger) as the "silent fifth Romeo." Fights? We've never had any. And this certainly helps. It's much more enjoyable belonging to a group which enjoys working together."

Silvi was the person who brought the four singers together. Before they formed the quartet they were members of the Gino Silvi Singers. When Silvi heard the CBC was looking for a vocal group for The Juliette Show, he believed the four singers had the talent and ambition to do the job. He coached them as a quartet and arranged for an audition. The group was hired to appear on one program, but have become a weekly part of the show since.

The four young men are not only versatile singers but also instrumentalists. Kennedy can play trumpet and trombone, Stainsby is also a trumpeter, Garden plays guitar and Ticknovich is an accordionist.

During their club act, the Romeos make frequent use of their instrumental talents along with some spontaneous comedy. Sometimes they'll spoof other groups. But they don't copy any other quartet's style; theirs is their own and they don't believe in gimmicks.

Their versatility is displayed from week to week on The Juliette Show. For instance, March 17, to help Juliette celebrate St. Patrick's Day, the Romeos will sing Brennan On the Moor and then join the female quartet, the Four Mice, in The Rose of Tralee and It's A Great Day for the Irish.

A Sound Investment

CANADIANS in Farm Forums coast to coast have since November been engaging in heightened activities—getting to know one another better in their own communities, feeling closer than ever before to other Forums across Canada, and all in the interests of an act of neighbourliness that will help to bring the outside world, with its modern methods and theories, closer to thousands of farmers in India.

The project—Radios for India—began snowballing after appeals were broadcast on the CBC's National Farm Radio Forum series, heard Monday nights at 8:30.

Auctions, baking and handicraft sales, bazaars, bingos, dances, concerts, plays, and fashion shows have been helping to earn money for the giant undertaking—and one group of Ontario farmers near Cobourg is even offering to chop wood for local residents for so much a cord, turning over the proceeds to the project, which aims at supplying at least 20 special radios to Farm Forums in India at a cost of $110 each. This price might seem a little high to some, but it is explained by the fact that the radios must be equipped with—and powerful enough to make use of—a loudspeaker—(each radio will be set up in a village square where the village leaders can listen to broadcasts from Radio India, discuss the subject of the day, and plan appropriate action); they must be in many cases battery-powered, and must be protected against the steamy Indian climate, and against vandalism.

Several years ago, as a result of a UNESCO report on the success of Canada's Farm Forum movement, India decided to try to emulate it. India has over 500,000 rural villages with under 1,000 persons in each, who badly need basic education, health training, new ideas for farming, sanitation, pest control, and training in those important but less tangible things like citizenship and democracy. The Indian government decided that small Farm Forums would not only help the villagers to learn quickly and easily, but would encourage them to work out their own destiny through group action. Canada has undertaken to supply these forums with their basic requirement—radios.

Explorations

Hidden Worlds, Part 1: The Hobo Jungle. The first of three Winnipeg programs exploring the hidden worlds of three different groups of persons who exist in our midst but whose lives are generally unobserved by the rest of society.

Viewers are taken to the banks of the Red River where each summer groups of transient men—hobos who lead gypsy-like wandering across the country—spend a few days or a few weeks in Winnipeg's 'hobo jungle' before moving on to another temporary resting place in another city or town.

In conversation with interviewer Per Holting, half a dozen transients talk about the hidden world they inhabit on the river bank—just a few hundred yards from the busy heart of downtown Winnipeg—and how and why they came to cut themselves off from conventional society to lead a hand-to-mouth existence on the outside. Alcohol is one of the reasons, but other explanations come to light as the inhabitants of the hobo jungle talk about their lives and their outlook on society.

Richard Widmark, centre, stars in A Prize of Gold, seen Wednesday on CFQC-TV, Saskatoon, and Friday on CBXT Edmonton.

"Serengeti

Must Not Die"

CBC TELEVISION'S The Nature of Things will present a program about the Serengeti National Park of Tanganyika on Thursday, March 29. A portion of an outstanding film of what is probably the last major refuge of the great African game herds will be shown. Entitled "Serengeti Must Not Die," the film has not been shown in North America but it made a good impression at various Continental film festivals in the last year.

The film was made by the father-and-son team of Dr. Bernhard and Michael Grzimek. Dr. Grzimek is curator of the Frankfurt Zoo in Germany and he and his son decided to visit the Serengeti National Park in an effort to answer for themselves the ideological question of whether or not man has inviolable rights on earth or whether wild life should be preserved at all costs. The Grzimeks, in 1958 and 1959, made the first thorough survey of Serengeti. The two counted the park's large animals and traced their migrations. As roads and trails were impassable in wet months, they learned to fly an airplane and trained themselves to estimate the number of animals from aloft. In this way they counted 366,980 animals—giraffe, hippo, buffalo, elephant, lion, leopard, zebra and many other species.

Next, they captured a representative number and marked them with bright plastic collars, enabling them to observe the movements of the animals and in this way they learned that about half the park's herds graze and breed regularly east of the proposed new borders for the park. (The park is located in the British Trust Territory of Tanganyika and the government plans to open the park's eastern third to the cattle, sheep and goats of 5,000 Masai tribesmen to provide needed agricultural and stock-raising land.)

Dr. Grzimek believes that if the government goes through with its plans, the great herds of wild grass-land animals will be all but wiped out. He admits the importance of providing for people but asks that reasonable measures be taken to protect the animals from extinction. "What is the use of the new park when the animals have to leave it every dry season, only to be killed in huge numbers on the outside?" asks Dr. Grzimek.

Unfortunately, the Grzimeks' expedition was marred by the death of 24-year-old Michael in an airplane crash as the two were completing the survey.

Music Highlights

Sunday, March 25 at 8:30 p.m. Music-Hall features Canadian songster Gilles Vigneault, a versatile and prolific writer and singer who, with Félix Leclerc, may be branded as a genuine troubadour—that special breed of men whose popular songs of today become the folk songs of tomorrow. One of his hits of recent years, "Jack Monolloy," is not unlike the traditional Indian legends of Canada. It sings of the brave warrior's love for the white "princess" and the disapproval of the moon and the trees, the forest animals and the humans' pride. It has won him wide acclaim in Canada and abroad, and definitely placed him among this country's top song writers.

Also featured in this week's Music-Hall telecast: singers Renée Claude and Paolo Noel, comedian Ernest Gunmond and singing master of ceremonies Jacques Normand. Henry Matthews conducts the orchestra; choreography is by Jack Ketchum.

Dancing on "Le Choix de"

American dancers Marge and Gower Champion will be featured in a half-hour play on Le Choix de..., Monday, March 26 at 9:30 p.m. The episode (Please turn to page 25)

Aaron Copland:

Champion of American Music

DISTINGUISHED American composer Aaron Copland is the guest of Music Diary this Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. He will be heard discussing his own compositions together with his views on contemporary music in general.

The interview with Aaron Copland was recorded during his recent visit to Vancouver when he conducted the city's symphony orchestra in a program of his own works and those of other leading American composers.

Aaron Copland was born in Brooklyn in 1900 and today makes his home just outside New York City when not on extended tours of Europe and other musical centres. In his youth his musical tuition came from such notable figures as Wittgenstein and Rubin Goldmark in the United States; and later Nadia Boulanger in Paris.

He twice received the Guggenheim Fellowship—in 1925 and 1926—and throughout his life has been a great champion of American music, taking an active part in many organizations including the International Society for Contemporary Music and the League of Composers.

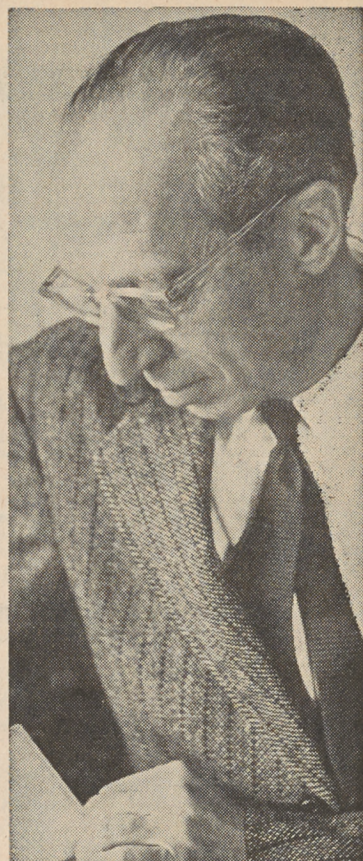

He has written an opera "The Tender Land"—to be performed on CBC Wednesday Night later this year—three symphonies and numerous orchestral works, including the popular "El Salon Mexico," and some of his most familiar music has been composed for the ballet ("Appalachian Spring" and "Billy the Kid" being two well known examples). The more severe and abstract side of his work is represented by such pieces as the Piano Sonata and Piano Fantasy, as well as various chamber works.

Listeners will hear illustrations drawn from a small cross section of Aaron Copland's music on "Music Diary" when the composer is interviewed by producer Robert Chesterman.

Aaron Copland also writes about music. His books "Music and Imagination" and "What to listen for in Music" have reached a wide public.

Federal Elections:

Getting the $11,000,000 "Show" on the Road

THE COST: nearly $11,000,000. The item: Canada's next federal election.

Once the Prime Minister decides on or reveals the date for the election, the chief electoral officer, Nelson Castonguay, is notified and he immediately sends telegrams to the 263 returning officers across the country, giving them the election date, the dates for enumeration, the nomination day date and all other dates they require to launch the election. Twenty-four hours after Castonguay is told of the election date, the public knows the date.

What happens once the Prime Minister announces the date of a federal election is the subject for CBC television's Camera Canada, Monday, March 26. The program deals with the preparations which the chief electoral officer must make in order that he can get the election machinery moving on 24 hours notice. It also delves into the selling job of an election—what and how the political candidates do in the way of campaigning for a federal election.

The program examines the process by which election machinery is set up in Canada, from the standpoint of enumerating, appointing returning officers, setting up polls, counting the vote and the work done to make sure that every eligible voter in Canada has an opportunity to cast his vote. Representatives of the four major political parties in Canada will be interviewed along with other people closely associated with a federal election. Guests include Castonguay, Norman Ward, professor of economy at the University of Saskatchewan and a winner of the Leacock Medal for Humor, and the following Members of Parliament: Frank McGee (York-Scarborough), Grant Campbell (Stormont), and H. W. Herridge (Kootenay West). Keith Davey, a national political party organizer, also will be interviewed.

METROPOLITAN OPERA

Macbeth. Opera in four acts by Verdi. Text by Piave, after Shakespeare's play. Cast: Macbeth—baritone; Lady Macbeth—soprano; Banquo—bass; Macduff—tenor. Banquo's son, Duncan, King of Scotland. A messenger. Nobles, retainers, soldiers, witches, etc.

Act I. A windswept heath. Prophetically, the witches hail Macbeth as Thane of Cawdor and King of Scotland. Banquo is acclaimed as father of kings to come. A messenger arrives from Duncan with news that the Thane of Cawdor has been executed for treason and that Macbeth is appointed in his stead. Thus, part of the prophecy is already fulfilled.

Change of scene: Lady Macbeth reads a letter from her husband and learns of the witches' predictions. Macbeth returns and she puts before him a plan to kill the king who has arrived at the castle. At midnight, when Duncan is asleep, he is murdered by Macbeth. A knocking is heard and Macduff and Banquo enter to discover the murder. They arouse everyone in the castle.

Act II. A lonely spot. A group of assassins set upon Banquo and his son. They kill Banquo but the son escapes.

Change of scene: a banquet given by Macbeth who now exercises the prerogatives of the murdered king. When Macbeth leaves his chair he returns to find Banquo's ghost seated at the table. Lady Macbeth encourages him to go on with the festivity. Macbeth resolves to visit the witches again.

Act III. The witches are seated around a cauldron in a dark cave. Macbeth enters and demands to know the future. They conjure up apparitions for him. The first, that he should fear Macduff; secondly, that he should fear "none of woman born"; the third, that he will not be vanquished till Great Birnam wood shall come against him; and in the last, he is shown Banquo as the father of future kings. Lady Macbeth enters and he tells her what he has seen and heard. In a fury she calls upon him to exterminate all those who stand in their way.

Act IV. Near Birnam wood. Scottish exiles bewail Macbeth's tyranny. Macduff tells of the murder of his wife and child. Malcolm, leader of an English force, commands that every soldier hew down a bough of the forest and carry it before him.

Change of scene: In the castle. Observed by a doctor and a lady-in-waiting, Lady Macbeth walks in her sleep. "Out damned spot!" she cries, her famous speech being converted into an operatic scena.

Change of scene: a hall in the castle. Macbeth learns that his wife is dead. He prepares for battle remembering the promise that none of woman born shall slay him. As the enemy approaches, the mass of green boughs carried by the soldiers gives the illusion that Birnam wood is moving toward the castle.

Change of scene: Outside the castle. Macbeth and his followers give battle. Macbeth comes face to face with Macduff who was "from his mother's womb untimely ripped." They fight and Macbeth is slain. The opera ends with the rejoicing of the liberated Scots.

Narrator and interviewer during the hour-long program is Blair Fraser, editor of Maclean's magazine. Producer is Norman Caton.

Castonguay says that before he can reach the ideal state of being able to operate on 24 hours' notice, a great deal of preliminary work must be done, as is presently being done:

"I must first get the supplies—about 500 tons of material which normally takes about six to seven months to get into my warehouse. Then the returning officers have to get the polls in shape. This means that in urban areas we try to reach for the target of between 200 or 300 electors per polling division while in the rural areas we try to give maximum coverage to the electors and, therefore, some of our polls consist of as few as 30 electors. Then the returning officers are given courses which last as long as six months. Once the courses are complete and they have done their preliminary work in the districts, I ship them their supplies. Then I'm in a favorable position to operate overnight."

As for the next federal election, Castonguay estimates that the over-all cost will be approximately $10,700,000 and among some of the items which contribute to that cost could be such things as the use of an ice-breaker to help electors get to the polling booths in northern districts.

SPORTS

BY THE TIME this gets into print, the Canadian curling championships, the Scotch Cup and possibly even fourth place in the N.H.L. standings will have been decided.

With the Stanley Cup playoffs scheduled to get underway this Tuesday, March 27, and Thursday, March 29, CBC television viewers will get a preview of the action Saturday night, the 24th, when the Detroit Red Wings are entertained by the Toronto Maple Leafs. This game (I predict) will feature the protagonists from series "B" of the 1962 Stanley Cup playoffs. The Montreal Canadiens will end the regular season in first place, Toronto will finish second, the Chicago Blackhawks third and the Detroit Red Wings fourth. The reason I'm sticking my neck out so far in advance and picking Detroit to nose out New York is because I think the Wings have just a little too much fire power up front with goal scorers like Gordie Howe, Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio, not to mention their red-hot rookie Larry Jeffery.

However (to prepare my alibi) times of the games as yet aren't set, mainly because nobody knows, except the author, just which teams will take part in the playoffs.

The 1962 Stanley Cup finals show promise of being the highest scoring ever. At the time of this writing (alibi) the Montreal Canadiens have an excellent chance of breaking the all-time record for total goals in one season. The Habs have been averaging very close to four goals a game and if they can maintain that pace until the end of the season, they should end up regular play with something in the neighbourhood of 260 goals. The all-time record which, incidentally, is held by Montreal, is 258 and it was set back in the 1958-59 season.

The Toronto Maple Leafs are also within "shooting down" distance of their team record, while the Chicago Blackhawks have surpassed their all-time goal scoring record. And while on the subject of records, the Boston Bruins will likely set a new team mark for goals against. The New York Rangers currently hold the record with 310, set back in the 1943-44 season when teams only played 50 games.

I look for the Montreal Canadiens to complete a great year by winning the Stanley Cup in a thrilling final with the Toronto Maple Leafs, which should go right down to the wire. A victory for the Habs would certainly be a fitting climax to a great year. A year when a great many hockey observers picked them to finish as low as third before the season began. The 1962 season finale in Montreal on March 24 climaxes a great come-back by the Canadiens' Jacques Plante, who could well top it off being named the most valuable player in the N.H.L. There's little doubt that Plante has inspired the Habs throughout most of the season and particularly when they were minus stars such as Tom Johnson, Boom Boom Geoffrion, Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau for long stretches during the regular campaign. Plante and the youngsters carried the load, but mainly Plante. With the emergence of Claude Provost, Gil Tremblay, Ralph Backstrom and rookie Bobby Rousseau as top goal-getters, the Montreal Canadiens will be tough and the Stanley Cup finals exciting.

For all the "bowling buffs" there's the usual Saturday bill of fare from the O'Connor Bowl, in Toronto, to hold their interest.

Also on Saturday, sports fans will be treated to a glimpse at the Sports Hall of Fame in Toronto. Fred Sgambati and Steve Douglas will conduct the tour, and will talk with such greats of the past as Syl Apps, Charlie Conacher, Fanny Rosenfeld and Jack Purcell.

Another Saturday highlight is a European soccer game, with two top teams. Details are to be announced, but it promises to be an interesting match to fans of the old-country sport.

Everything considered, this week shapes up as the most exciting in weeks for CBC television sports fans.

His News Beat:

Half the World's People

MICHAEL MACLEAR, CBC's correspondent in the Far East, has one of the largest new beats in the world: a vast triangle of territory extending from Japan to India to Australia. Tokyo, world's largest city, is his home base.

Maclear's job is to submit reports to CBC radio and television news and public affairs programs, and to follow major news trends in the Far East so that he is ready and waiting when and where important news stories break.

Born in London, England, Maclear is a graduate of Westminster College, and the City Literary Institute of London. He joined the CBC as a news writer in 1955 and by 1959 was a supervisor in the CBC-TV national news office in Toronto. After six months of supervisory work he returned to his first love, active reporting, and the next two years travelled through Africa, Asia and Latin America, specializing in documentary reporting. He then returned to Canada to serve as writer-host of a CBC-TV public affairs series, Background.

When CBC established a Tokyo bureau in 1961, it came as no surprise that Maclear, well-travelled and thoroughly experienced in news reporting, was chosen as Far East correspondent.

"The Far East has always fascinated me, both as a reporter and as an individual," says Maclear. "The great social transition now taking place in the East, and the various approaches to this change—persuasion in India, compulsion in China and adopted democracy in Japan—influence the future of the entire world. Personally, I am also intrigued by the social and cultural values the East might offer the West.

"Tokyo provides a natural base of operations for news gathering. It is the political capital of the West's foremost ally in the Far East, and the home of what is perhaps the world's most distinct culture. But the East offers a great challenge to Westerners who would understand its complexities. Language barriers must be overcome and Eastern character and concepts understood before a correspondent can do accurate, objective reporting."

Maclear does not visit all the countries on his beat regularly. He claims the important thing is to detect general moods and trends, in order to understand events and be ready when they occur. To illustrate his theory, he points out that he was in India prior to the recent infringement on Indian territory by mainland China, and was waiting in Vietnam when the U.S. set up a military command.

- 1 tablespoon relish
 - 1 green onion

When using a blender, blend all ingredients for about a minute or until well mixed. When using a beater, mix dry ingredients, gradually add oil, beating continuously; then add egg yolks, lemon juice and vinegar and beat again. Then add rest of ingredients. Store in refrigerator.
